STRUCK FOR SALARIES.

Colonel Mapleson's Orchestra Said "No Pay, No Play," and Quit.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.-The Grand Imperial Opera Company, Col. J. H. Mapleson director, met with a serious setback to-night, and the future of the organization is said to be dubious. Just before the performance of "Andria Chenier," at the Boston Theater, which was to be the initial production in this city, the entire orchestra notified Mr. Mapleson that it would not play unless the arrears of salary were forthcoming at once. Colonel Mapleson was unable to comply with the demand and the orchestra left. An attempt was then made to give the opera with the assistance of a plano, but after the instrument had been carried into the theater the leading performers refused to sing, and nothing remained but to dismiss the large audience, which was accordingly done, the money being refunded at the box office. Colonel Mapleson announced to-night that there would be no performance to-morrow night, and that the programme for the re-maining nights would probably be carried out. They are billed to open in Chicago known to make it clear that his report would not be favorable to the Spanish contentions. It is known that the report which General Lee makes presents a very grave, not to say horrifying, condition of affairs in Cuba. One of the conditions he describes is that of the situation of the noncombatants, peaceable citizens, who have no interest in the war except to see it ended. These people whether within the it ended. These people, whether within the Spanish lines or the Cuban lines, are sufferers. If within the Cuban lines they plant their crops in order to obtain a living, only to have their territory raided and occupied by the Spanish forces, who immediately destroy the crops, burn the houses and other property of the planters, and on the slightest pretext, it is alleged, put the men to death or imprison them on the ground that they have been aiding the rebellion. In fact, it is regarded as aiding the Cubans if crops are raised which they might obtain. Noncombatants within Spanish territory, when occupied by the Cubans are given like treatment on the ground that they sympathize with Spain. The report of General Lee, besides showing what difficulties the noncombatants have to contend with in the matter of sehave to contend with in the matter of se-curing enough food to sustain life, also points out how they are often hurried to prisons and condemned without the trials Americans are accustomed to see given to persons charged with offenses. It is known that General Lee's report shows that cruel-ty is practiced on both sides, but, it is said, states that more cases have come to his knowledge of wrongs on the part of the WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.-Some valuable pointers for American bicycle makers who desire to introduce their machines into Germany are contained in a report to the State Department by United States Consul Tingley, at Brunswick, Germany. He predicts that the German market willl next year grow to very large proportions, and by proper methods American manufacturers can secure a very good share of it. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 .- Arriving Illinois members of Congress and politicians predict the election of Alderman Madden, of Chicago, to the United States Senate, vice Senator Palmer. They say the Tanner-Lorimer-Madden machine is in complete possession of the field. The "boodle" cry has been raised against Madden throughout the State, but seemingly without effect on the machine phalanx.

AUTOMATIC GALLOWS TESTED. Caspar Hartlein Hanged in the Connecticut Penitentiary.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 3. - Caspar Hartlein was hanged in the State prison at Wethersfield shortly after 1 o'clock this (Thursday) morning for the murder of Louise Marie Tebbe, of South Manchester, Feb. 29 last. The execution was the second held in the State by the automatic gallows, and the method proved to be a complete success. Death was practically instantaneous and painless. Hartlein's neck was broken by the fall. All who witnessed it pronounced it an expeditious and humane Hartlein's demeanor was calm and fearless throughout, and the joviality which has characterized him since his incarceration in the condemned cage did not desert him at the end. To Warden Woodbridge he had spoken frequently of the crime and expressed sorrow for his act, and said he longed for death, "because I will then be able to meet Louise again." In reply to the warden's inquiry he said that he had nothing to say. After a final handshake and good-bye Deputy Baiseden and Officer Doolittle strapped his hands and the party then entered the execution room, about ten feet distant. It was the work of only a few seconds to strap Hartlein's feet, place the black cap over his head and adjust the noose as he stood upon the plate and after preconcerted signals the warden's foot pressed the treadie and the body shot into the air. At the end of a few minutes Dr. Fox proncunced life extinct, and the body was lowered and given in charge of the undertakers. The murder for which Caspar Hartlein was executed was that of Louise Marie Trebbe, an unmarried woman, aged thirtyfive years, who was stabbed through the heart on the morning of Feb. 29, 1896, at a farmhouse in South Manchester. Hartlein was employed to do chores about the farm. He fell in love with Miss Trebbe, who rejected his advances. In a fit of desperation he killed her.

DARING GANG BROKEN UP. Swindlers Who Obtained Many Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Goods.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 2.-By the arrest of Charles Rubinsky this afternoon the federal authorities say that they have broken up a daring gang of swindlers, who, during the past five years, have obtained goods valued at many thousands of dollars from merchants of New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities. The ring leaders of the gang are said to have been three brothers Harry, Abraham and Charles Yarowsky. Rubinsky was arrested in Shenandoah by Deputy United States Marshal Myers and Postoffice Inspector Hugh J. Gorman, both of Philadelphia, the charge being illegal use of the mails. The gang oper sted through stores established under assumed names in small towns. A good credit would be worked up by buying small lots of goods for cash and then, on the strength of the cash credit, other stores were established, the supposed proprietors secured good commercial debtedness and thus obtained large quantities of goods on time. These goods would be ordered sent to certain stores, but upon their arrival the swindiers moved them elsewhere and disposed of them at leisure Among the places established were the following, all in this State: At Catawissa, under name of Conrad Herring; Lykens, Bernard Wilson; Berwick, Henry Miller; Bloomsburg, John H. Schmidt; Nanticoke Charles Sherman: Danville, Bernard Wagner, and Shenandoah, Rubinsky & Friedman and Yarowsky Bros. Harry and Charles Yarcwsky also have been arrested. Abe Yarowsky and Joe Alpert, alleged members of the gang, are fugitives from justice and are said to be in Africa. In tracing the gang the officers hunted through much of the mountainous country of central Pennsylvania, and the story of their adventures reads like a ro-

JOHN BROWN'S LAST LETTER Written Shortly Before the Noted Abolitionist Was Put to Death.

HUDSON, O., Dec. 2.-Lora T. Case, of this city, found to-day the following letter addressed to himself from old John Brown, of Ossawatomie, the last written before his death, and never before pub-"Charleston, Va., Dec. 2, 1859.

"Lora Case, Esq.-My Dear Sir: Your most kind and cheering letter of the 28th of November is received. Such an out-burst of warm-hearted sympathy, not only for myself, but also for those who have helped, compels me to steal a moment from those allowed me in which to prepare for my last great change to send you a few words. Such a feeling as you manifest makes you shine (in my estimation) in the midst of the wicked and perverse generation as a light in the world, and may you ever prove yourself equal to the high estimate I have placed upon you. Pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is, as I understand it, an active (not a dermant) principle. I do not undertake to direct any more in regard to my children. I leave that work entirely to their excellent mother, from whom I have just parted. I send you my salutation with my own hand. Remember me to all your and my dear friends. Your friend "JOHN BROWN."

A GENEROUS COLORADOAN.

Nearly $100,000 Bequeathed by W. B. Perkins to Public Enterprises.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Dec. 2.- The will of the late Willard B. Perkins, formerly of this city, but at the time of his death a citizen of Colorado Springs, just admitted to probate, bequeaths nearly $100,000 to public enterprises. Of this amount various institutions at Colorado Springs get about $55,000, while Columbia College, New York, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology receive $6,000 each. The income from $20,000 is to be used for prizes in the some time ago that it would maintain permanent headquarters. Mr. Payne said:

FITZSIMMONS REALLY WON THE FIGHT WITH A KNOCKOUT BLOW.

But the Referee Awarded It to the with the Knee in the Groin.

DECISION UNSATISFACTORY

ANNOUNCEMENT

WITH GROANS AND HISSES.

Eight Furious Rounds, in Which Fitz Showed His Superiority as a Fair, Scientific Fighter.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.-Thomas Sharkey and Robert Fitzsimmons fought their much-advertised battle to-night, and the honors were awarded Sharkey on a foul, though Fitz knocked his man out in the eighth round and seemed to have fairly won the fight. The last round was furious, Fitz soon had his man going, and went at him feroclously. A right hand swing staggered the sailor, and then came a lefthand swing, and a left-arm punch under the chin that sent Sharkey over with a thud. While Sharkey was falling the referee claims that Fitz struck him in the groin with his knee, thus committing a foul. Sharkey was undoubtedly badly hurt. He was unable to move his legs, though he clutched spasmodically at his groin with his gloved hand. His seconds rushed into the ring and raised him up, but he fainted away and was borne from the ring unconscious. Hardly anyone among the spectators saw the foul, and the decision was received with hisses and groans. As far as the art of fighting goes, Sharkey is not in the same class with Fitzsimmons. He is a willing, strong man, but has little science. A clever man like Fitz had no trouble in avoiding his rushes, and he continually left himself open to damag-

Between fifteen thousand and twenty thousand people occupied all the available space in the big Mechanics' pavilion and watched the contest, which every one regarded as practically deciding the championship of the world. The long, lean New Zealander who had had a succession of victories in the United States for the last five or six years entered the ring to-night with almost every apparent advantage in his favor. He could count on experience and science, his height and reach and every other quality which enters into the making of the successful prize fighter. Against him was the sailor lad who was unknown six months ago, but who rose to fame recently when he came perilously near trailing in the dust the colors of California's idol, James J. Corbett. Against the science and experience and the superior height and reach of Fitzsimmons was Sharkey, with his youth and strength, probably one of the greatest examples of muscular development that the prize ring has produced. A man not accredited with the science of a Fitzsimmons or a Corbett, but who had proved that he would be a "chopping block" for no one, and who was known to possess most remarkable strength and endurance and to fear nothing that ever stepped into a prize ring. Both men had trained hard and well for several weeks before the contest and particularly during the last few days and each had expressed the utmost confidence in his ability to gain a victory and the $10,000 purse which the National Athletic Club offered the victor. BOTH MEN WERE CONFIDENT. Although the contest was limited to ten rounds there was hardly a spectator in the pavilion to-night who did not expect to see one or the other of the nighters go down to defeat before the full limit of the fight had been reached. The men themselves evidently expected the same. Fitzsimmons and his trainers were confident that Sharkey would be put out in from one to five rounds and Sharkey expressed every confidence that he would defeat Fitzsimmons within seven rounds. The betting public naturally leaned toward the man of experience and the odds in Fitzsimmons's favor averaged about 21/4 to 1, in some cases going as high as to 1. Just before the fight started the prevailing odds were about 20 to 9. There was no lack of Sharkey money at these figures and many bets were offered at even money and accepted that Fitzsimmons would put his man out within six rounds.

The National Club had made most elaborate preparations for the fight and it is probable that a similar contest was never witnessed by as many people. The twenty-four-foot ring was located in the center of the pavilion, the largest building of its kind in San Francisco, and over 150 boxes, accommodating from six to ten persons each, surrounded the ring, and beyond the boxes and on all four sides of the building were row after row of chairs. Every seat in the building was occupied and thousands of men stood up back of the

One unique feature of the night was the fact that for the first time in the history of pugilism the management of the club threw open the doors to wemen and several hundred were in attendance to-night some of them gray-haired matrons whose enthusiasm on the subject led them to venture beyond the bounds of conventionality. One hundred police and as many more spe-cial officers were in attendance and a hundred ushers, all in evening dress, escorted the spectators to their seats.

Long before the fighters appeared in th ring a solid mass of humanity was banked in from one end of the pavilion to the other. There was no lack of enthusias at any stage of the fight and notwithstanding the long delay before the actual 'event" of the evening occurred, there was nothing but the greatest good nature prevailing everywhere and there was not the slighest sign of a disturbance. Several preliminary events preceded the chief event. and it was very late when Fitzsimmon and Sharkey appeared in the ring. One of the most noticeable differences in the men was in regard to height, the New Zealander being five feet eleven and Sharkey five feet eight and one-quarter inches. Each of the men weighed about 175. The seconds for Fitzsimmons were Martin Julian, Dan Hickey and Jack Stelzner. For Sharkey George Allen, Australian Billy Smith and Danny Needham. Wyatt Earp, the famous Arizona stage driver, who has figured in many a gun fight on the border, was chosen referee late this

It was fully 9 o'clock before the great crowd began to make an impression on the vast number of vacant seats. Outside the pavilion stood a crowd estimated at ten thousand, which commenced to assemble as early as 6 o'clock. It is estimate that the National Club took in at leas $40,000 at the box office. At 9 o'clock, before three-fourths of the seats were filled, the preliminaries were called and a number of local celebrities exhibited their prowess. Harry Stefford, of New Orleans, and John Howard, of San Francisco, came up for a three-rou Lon Agnew, of Chicago, and Fred Muller, of San Francisco, lightweights, in a tenround contest, were the next attraction
